GREETINGS

The twenty-ninth edition of the Roller is now in your hands. Those who are responsible for its publication herewith present a graphic description of personalities and activities which prove that old M.H.S. continues the pattern of educational service and intellectual and physical accomplishments, long ago established in this institution of learning. "The moving finger writes and having writ moves on." The present soon becomes the past, and the future soon moves into the position of the present. But as time flows on quietly and relentlessly, interested eyes may repeatedly scan these pages and momentarily turn back the pages of time and recapture and re-live the rich and happy moments previously experienced in these halls of training. Across the fields of memory we may travel into the land of yesteryear, and though we may not go back, we may think back.

It is with this idea in mind that we dedicate this Annual to all who have shared with us the enjoyable use of our beautiful well-kept buildings, the rich association of our varied and talented faculty, and the efficient and energetic Administration and Board.

We are deeply grateful to the generous business men in McDonald and in nearby communities for the ads which we have secured from them and which we include in this edition. Without the financial assistance thus assured, this publication of the Roller would have been next to impossible.

Our theme is based on the seasonal sequence. We have striven to place our school classes and activities in such order that they will depict a progression relative to your school life.

We wish to express our appreciation to Mr. Kukuk, the advisor and editor, to Mr. Moran for his artistic contributions, Miss Fenton and her art students, and to the competent staff of eleventh and twelfth grade students who gave willingly of their time and talent to make this 1954 Roller a definite success.

We may refer to the P.T.A. as the cushion that makes the riding more comfortable. Our hats are off to our local school supporters who have cushioned our work by presenting our school with equipment necessary to make a child's school life more interesting.

At Christmas time our buildings beam with the Christmas trees presented on the playground activities and games are carried on through the efforts of thoughtful P.T.A. people, wet clothing is no longer a problem at Roosevelt School since the installation of the clothes dryer; now for the benefit of all students, an audiometer has been presented in order that the hearing acuity of each student may be checked. This screening program is being carried on by Mrs. Lindsey and Mr. Kukuk.

Financial support for this program comes through membership dues and the annual school fair.

We of McDonald Schools say — "Good work P.T.A."; we greatly appreciate your interest.

CLASS HISTORY

September 7, 1941, marked the day of a great event. On the day the senior class of '54' lifted the roof of our first Alma Mater as we boisterously went to our kinder rater seats.

Say, kids, remember how we learned to play hot potato. When we finally caught on to the game, it was time for us to pass on to the first grade.

That was the year of the big snowdrifts, or they seemed big to us, maybe because we were so young, short, and darling. Ah h h! Remember the day Carol Kutsko was asked to dispose of the vase of withered flowers and she emptied water as well as flowers in the waste basket?

In the second grade we began to have responsibilities (pushed on us). We had jobs such as cleaning erasers, washing boards, and cleaning the fish bowls. Jane Martin was so enthusiastic, she over fed a goldfish and the poor thing died. Her only comment to this day is "I didn't think it would eat everything in one day." See, even then we were real smart. Ha Ha.

In the third grade, Miss Hunter had a sure-cure for all. Hey, Tom Witkowski, remember sitting under her, playing with a baby doll? Strange as it seems, Tom still hasn't learned his lesson. Right, Tom?

The fourth year we were really big stuff. We ran the second floor (that is, if we didn't get caught). Hey, it is does this sound familiar? Round, round round ready, ready, ready, touch, 1-2-3-4-5-6-7-8-9-10. Yes, that was Miss Haddon's writing class.

In the fifth grade, we met and joined Mrs. Isler and her tall, tall tales. Remember the Spanish moss and cypress tree we had growing in our tree?

However, in the sixth grade Mrs. Curry and the Misses and Josephine Roush cooled us down a few. It took them quite a while to cool off the giggling girls, but they finally succeeded. Or did they? One day we learned we were not to pass notes. Ha, Ha.

The first big thrill of our lives was when we the halls of our future Alma Mater, M.H.S. the day Earlann Bush called Mr. Kukuk. Earlann, what happened? We missed you the re period.

In the eighth grade we settled down a little. Nothing much happened that year except that a few girls got locked out of the writing class.

In the ninth grade we thought we were pretty big because we got to choose our own subjects. Or so we thought!!! Mr. Hadley, look over Mrs. Isler's pastime of telling fantastic stories. Remember the story about the bear which chased him up and over the hill and he ran from January to June?

Hey, kids remember the tenth grade and second year Latin Class? How about the day Joanne Hannon left her notes on her desk and then, realizing what had happened, returned to the room, where she found Mrs. Pierson holding the Latin notes in her hand? Joanne being one of the police (?) members of our class thanked Mrs. Pierson for them. Nice going, Joanne!

In our junior year, we lost a very well liked teacher and friend, Mr. Steve Sonoga, who now teaches at Boardman.

The one disappointment, we had loads of doing everything ready for prom. We had such a wonderful prom. Remember all the fun we had blowing all those balloons up? Hey, kids, remember the day of prom picnic? Rain, rain and more rain. We can still see Mr. Davis coming down the midway at Idora with a raincoat and hip boots and eating cotton candy. Mr. Davis, you were a wonderful riot!

Say, remember how we used to poster Emmy every day until our class rings came in. Each day. Huh? Then came the day of days. We became honorable seniors. This year we looked forward to pictures, graduation, baccalaureate, prom, picnic, fun and lots of studying (?) Seriously though, in our senior year, the kids have really tried to study and make up for all the lost time.

Now that our school years at good old McDonald High are gone and in the past they will remain only a memory. All we can do now, is look back at all the fun and see a of the past years.

This is the prophecy My name is Aliceann Rea. My partner, Dave Leskovac and I, were working the day-watch out of homicide when it all started. Dave was reading the racing sheet and I was polishing my nails when the phone rang. Dave answered it and I knew by the grim expression on his face that something was wrong.

"Dave," I said, "what happened?"

A 301

"You don't mean a . . . ?"

"That's what I'm trying to tell you, someone is kidnapping teachers out of season. Mr. Davis is the victim this time. They think Mr. McGowan might be next. Our job find the kidnaper."

We set out at once. Our first stop was McDonald High School, the scene of the crime. We stopped at the office and questioned the office personnel. They didn't give us much help; however, they did mention that Mr. Davis had quite a few enemies in the class of '54. It wasn't much, but it was the only clue we had; so we decided to track it down. We secured a list of the class members and started inquiring around.

Two on the list were employed at McDonald High, so we queried them first. Jack Miller is head of the Foreign Language Department. French is the only language he uses in conversation, so we gave up in desparation after only a few questions. Jane Martin instructs driving students. She said she had seen a suspicious looking black car speed away from the school about 2 00 P M; however, when we checked the description, we found that the driver, Ronald Polols, was just in a hurry to get to the Canfield Speedway, where he races his six cars. His business manager, Dick Clifford, was closing a deal in Indianapolis, thereby being unavailable for interrogation.

Our business at the school having been completed, we hailed a taxi to take us to the business section of town. The taxi driver was formerly Miss Bernice Bucan. Bernice and her husband own and operate the "Ride-at-Your-Own Risk" Taxi Service.

The first person we met upon entering the Drug Store was Janice Baldwin who is head librarian at the comic book rack. Janice assured us she knew nothing about Mr. Davis's disappearance, but she recommended the latest 3-D comic book entitled "Captain Wayne Sawyer and His Space Guard Escapades."

It was dark when we came out of the Drug Store, so Dave and I agreed to make only one more stop before calling it a day. We walked up the stairs to the Y Cafe where three more of those to be questioned were employed. We chatted a while with Barbara Klenovich, who checks hats at the Cafe, but Barb didn't even know Mr. Davis was missing. As we walked toward the main dining room, Joan Bispeck stopped us to see if the Missing Persons Bureau had any luck in locating her husband Charles Gilchrist. It seems Charlie bought a one-way ticket to England after he and Joan had their first fight, and Joan hasn't heard from him since.

We had just started eating our dinner, when Carol Kutsko came by our table calling: "Cigars, cigarettes?" Dave bought a pack of cigarettes from her and asked if she had heard of any plot against Mr. Davis; however, Carol couldn't imagine anyone disliking Mr. Davis, and she was horrified to think that something might have happened to him.

Having finished our dinner, we went over to Dolores Luknis, the cashier, and asked her to fill out our expense book. Dolores said she would be glad to do that for us, and before we had a chance to question her, she said: "I'm just an innocent bystander. I don't know anything about the case." So we had to call it a day without uncovering anything of importance.

At 9:00 A.M. the next day, Dave and I were at Dr. Chellan's office on Marshall Road. Charles is head veterinarian at the Marshall Road Zoo. Roberta Neff his pretty nurse, showed us to the giraffe cage, where Chuck was trying to sooth the animal's sore throat. "Chuck," I said, "that looks like a pretty big job." "That's about the size of it," he replied. We asked Chuck and Roberta if they had anyone that looked suspicious around the neighborhood in the last 24 hours.

Our next stop was the "I-Swan-Swim Carnival. Sandy Christman and Martha Hughes are the owners and stars of the successful enterprise. Sandy's degree in physical education has enabled her to have a part-time job teaching liner exercises to the inmates at an insane asylum operated by Peggy Perrone. Peggy was in the hospital at the time and we were not allowed to question her.

Nancy Davies is featured as a stunt diver in Sandy and Mar's Swim Show. The show is located on the Mahoning River and Nancy is noted for her breath-taking dives from the Girard Bridge. Roberta Martin, Vernice Gibson, and Dolores Dawson, have charge of the concessions in the carnival. Roberta sells miniature Scotch dolls which she manufactures, and Vernice and Dolores handle the food concessions. We managed to get all the girls together before they got ready for the afternoon performance and were able to question them quite thoroughly. However, when we evaluated their answers we found that they had given us nothing of importance to our case.

On our way back to our office in the Municipal Building, we stopped at the "Baseball Club" to see John Cvetic and Judy Johnson. John is owner and manager of a girls' baseball team captained by Judy. The two were watching Steve Evinsky on the "I've-Got-Something-to-Say" T.V. Panel Show. Dave and I sat down to watch and we had to admit that Steve had plenty to say. John had heard about Mr. Davis's disappearance and he suggested that we get in touch with Tom Witkowski. Tommy is president of an International Pickpocket School and John was sure he had many contacts with the underworld.

Tommy's place of business is located in New York, so we had to call the Air Force at Vienna and make arrangements to be flown there. The general of the base said he would have Earlann Bush and her co-pilot, Don, fly us to New York at 7 30 that evening; so we had to work fast to clear up our work here before we left.

Joanne Hannon and Theresa Ferraro married their high school sweethearts, Harry and Al, shortly after graduation and are now living in the same apartment building. Joanne has three little "hippos" running around and "fee is raising two little "waves." I went alone to question them, but the children were making so much noise, I gave up trying to hear above the din.

Back at the office once more, I picked up a magazine and sat down to relax for a few minutes. There was a feature article on "Scott Johnston's Sausage Factory" which is located in Marietta, Ohio. Scott's factory is unique in that it is the only one in existence that advertises a money back guarantee if you don't find something wrong with the product. Mary Lou Hooten and Virginia Golubic were shown tying strings around the end of the sausage wrappers. Beverly Mackey spends her time pasting labels on the wrappers.

The other item of interest in the magazine was the advertisement on the back cover. Donald Kosevac was featured as the "before" in the muscle ad. Don also has been doing quite a bit of T.V. work lately. His program "Song Time" immediately follows the "I Love Lucy" show. Arthur Kurowski plays the part of Lucy's husband Ricky on the show.

By the time Dave finished his desk work, it was time for us to go to the airport. Earlann and Don were ready to take off when we arrived, and we landed at the New York airport 30 minutes later.

As we were walking down Broadway in search of the building in which Tommy's office was located, Bob Goodrich snapped our picture as any good street photographer would do. We told him that we had come to New York in hopes of rescuing Mr. Davis from the hands of a kidnaper. Bob asked how much we would give him for any information leading to the arrest and conviction of the kidnaper, and when we told him that the reward was a sizeable amount, he produced a picture which he had taken of Mr. Davis and a strange, criminal looking man who was obviously the character we were looking for.

Mr. Davis was found in the basement of a swank New York hotel and his abductor was sentenced to 30 lashes with a wet noodle, thus ending case 301.

NOTE: All characters in this story are real except the kidnaper, any resemblance to occupations is purely coincidental

ROOSEVELT ELEMENTARY SCHOOL

WILLIAM E. REA, Principal

The Roosevelt School Curriculum is made up of three integrated departments: Kindergarten, Primary School, and Intermediate School.

The Kindergarten at present has two sessions, a morning and an afternoon session. The first year in school requires many adjustments for the child. This transition period calls for the closest cooperation of parents and teachers. In this connection information concerning the child's background will be helpful to the teacher. The Kindergarten is often the child's first contact outside his home. It is important that this step be taken without emotional disturbance. The wise mother explains to the child that kindergarten is an interesting and enjoyable place, offering new toys, new playmates and new adventures. In Kindergarten the child learns to take further care of himself, to work with others, and to adjust himself to a routine of school habits.

The Primary School includes the three years beyond the Kindergarten. It differs from the traditional first three grades only in the method of measuring progress. That is to say, we recognize the fact that not all pupils are ready to read at the same rate nor do they learn at the same rate. For this reason, some pupils may require four or more years to achieve what others can achieve in three years. For example, a child in the traditional second grade who does not meet the standard of achievement for that grade in his second year is failed or retained and simply repeats the year's work whereas in the organization called the Primary School the child does not repeat what he has accomplished but continues in his third year where he left off in the second. Although reading determines very largely the rate at which children progress through the Primary School, there are many other important factors which make for the all round education of the child. Other fundamentals taught in the Primary School include numbers or arithmetic, writing, and spelling. Art, music, and physical education are almost equally important, because they are essential to an understanding and an appreciation of the finer things of life.

The Intermediate School is planned in accordance with the nature and needs of the child. The teachers of grades four, five, and six must thoroughly understand the characteristics of the pupils enrolled in these grades. Reading is still a predominant factor in the child's progress, but other subjects begin to take on more importance, such as arithmetic, writing, spelling, English, social studies, art, music, and physical education. All have their part in the child's growth.

The proper education of the child requires not only a knowledge of the "3 R's" but also the learning of desirable habits. To this end we believe every child should learn good health habits, good work habits, and how to get along with others. But that is not all. Of even greater importance, the child must be taught a sense of moral and spiritual values, a respect for things sacred, and a love for our American ideals and traditions.

The above fundamentals of education are learned by practical experience which the child gains through many and varied activities in the classroom, on the play ground, in the gymnasium, in the assembly, and on excursions.

Congratulations, Classes of 1954!

We've come so far from the Little Red School . . . the place Grandpa left to go out into the world. The simple training that he acquired in that one-room building of long ago was so vastly different from yours.

Education has leaped right along with the hurried advance of science and industry . . . and youth has discovered complexities early so early that some of the most startling finds in the world of invention today have come from the minds of the very young.

Take the vast store of wisdom that these years of study have given you. Take it right on to new fields of knowledge . . . to college, to business, to the career of your choice.

Remember that most knowledge has been recorded in books . . . so continue to study, continue to work toward GREATER heights of perfection.

Our best wishes go with you all of the way.
